A Runaway.

ON Monday morning last, a young and likely negro man slave, named DICK, left the service of the subscriber, and is now supposed to be lurking in or about the town of Alexandria. He is about 18 or 19 years of age, copper colored, well made, and wears his hair in a queue. He took with him shoe-makers' tools, with which he is a tolerable workman, and had on a short jacket made of dark colored twilled Virginia cloth and pantalons of the same.

As he went off without any sort of provocation that I know of, it is supposed he is harbored at some of the numerous tiding houses in or about the town, and perhaps kept at work to defray his expenses.

I will give Ten Dollars reward for his apprehension and delivery to me, or if he is secured in any jail and notice given to me—and if he is apprehended out of the county of Fairfax or district of Columbia, I will pay Ten additional Dollars.

THE HONEST POLITICIAN.

January 12.

From the Hampshire Federalist.

GENERAL EATONS SPEECH.

Delivered in Town-Meeting at Brimfield, April 3, 1809.

Give me leave, Mr. Moderator, to read an extract from a copy of a letter which appears in the National Egis of March 29th, said to be addressed to Messrs. Daniel Wright and Erastus Lyman of Northampton, and signed John Adams; viz.—“I always consider the whole nation my children—but they have almost all been undutiful to me. You two, gentlemen, are almost the only ones out of my own house who have for a long time, and I thank you for it, expressed a filial affection for—

If this letter had been signed John Quincy Adams, I should not doubt its authenticity; as it is, I have doubts. But whether real or fabricated by forgery, it displays equal vanity in the author and in the two gentlemen to whom it is said to be addressed. What! have we but two gentlemen left in our nation faithful to the principles of a venerable revolutionary patriot? Revolutionary patriot! On no other grounds can Mr. Adams fairly claim filial affection from free Americans; for it is to be presumed, that out of his family, he would have too much respect for the reputation of the mothers of the gentlemen he here compliments, to mean any thing else by the term children, than politically made his. But his political children were all federal. These, therefore, must be illegitimate.

The colloquy between Mr. Adams, when agent at Holland and visitant at Paris, and Diodati, ambassador for the elector of Saxony, is too ridiculous to merit its signature; and of course requires no comment. It is passing ridiculous to hear these, his children, agents of a political party, now hallelujahing the man by the epithet “venerable revolutionary patriot,” whom eight years ago they denounced, for the same purposes, “a hoary-headed incendiary.”

There are indeed sentiments in the letter ascribed to Mr. Adams, worthy an American. It opposes war, with France, and war generally—it opposes a dismemberment of the union. All that is christian—and, as it respects us, good national policy. We can have no benefit from war, if we can maintain an honorable peace. The God of nature has given us too much to make it necessary that we should seek wealth in the slaughter of men—it is better policy that we should cultivate them. But if pressed into war with two mighty belligerents, I would rather league with England than France—France, did I say? There is no France; all which was, has become Corsican—and the little charity-school tyrant, who now leads Frenchmen to death, and who has made a Golgotha of all Europe, will by and bye leave as many petty tyrants on that devoted continent, as he has brothers, cousins, bastards and generals—like ‘Macedonia’s madman,’ overrun the world, and leave that world to repair the injuries of his ambition. Since I saw his footsteps in Egypt I have hated Bonaparte. He wrested jewels from ladies’ fingers—slaughtered prisoners disarmed, & prescribed arsenic for his own wounded soldiers. Subsequent events have confirmed me in the opinion I there imbibed concerning him. Has he not wantonly burnt and sunk our ships when pursuing a lawful commerce? It is matter of indifference to him whether he use treachery, steel, poison, fire or water, to bring him to universal empire.

But to our subject—Who is to be governor of Massachusetts? The competitors are the hon. Mr. Gore, and the hon. Mr. Lincoln, I don’t like either of them—Gore is too lofty, and Lincoln too servile—I would rather have a Strong, or an Otis. But as we have only an alternative, I am for Gore.—The latter is neither a coward nor a sycophant. He has manfully supported our interests abroad, and done much to promote the wealth and prosperity of our country at home. He is accused of speculating on soldiers wages—the charge is not exactly true. He speculated on the doubtful credit of this country. So did every man at that time, who had the means of speculating.—He is charged with being the son of a tory? What if he were the son of a Musselman? He had no volition in that—“Ye shall no longer use the proverb—your fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge.” By their fruits ye shall know them.” Mr. Gore has always and uniformly defended the rights of commerce, and eminently labored to support the interests of the New England states. Mr. Lincoln! What good thing has he done? While attorney general of the United States, in prosecuting a cause at Washington, in pursuance of his official duty, he arose to the court, and said—hem—and sat down and said hem: that’s all. I never knew any other great public act of his. I was present at this exhibition of talents, and blushed for Massachusetts; southern gentlemen laughed. Mr. attorney Lincoln was superceded in office, or resigned for shame; I cannot affirm which—came home—has since been made vice-governor—sanctioned the enforcing embargo law, and ordered detachments of militia to enforce the measure, without counsel, and without the concurrence of the people over whom he accidentally presides. To amuse and cajole an honest populace, he now talks of religion, violations of sabbaths, and other things. A lawyer talk of religion! Think rather of repentance. Let me ask that sanctified lieutenant governor if he always dined at home on Sundays, when dreaming on his duty at Washington? If Gore has gone beyond a Sabbath day’s journey in his exercises, and infringed a statute law—Lincoln has more often, on the same day, committed sacrilege by worshipping an idol, at whose table he drank burgundy, and at whose table he received a tythe. I hate religious hypocrisy, sir, and will leave the disgusting subject to religious hypocrites.—To the enforcing embargo law of January 9, 1809—it saps our liberties—he who tamely yields to it, must, according to my understanding of it, be a dependant on office-givers, and a political apostate. It yields to the control of an individual all that we, as republicans, ever contended for; and sets us down the drooping victims of our own mislaid confidence—the workmen and signers of our destruction.

The late honorable John Quincy Adams approved of embargo laws and their privations—so he did approve of our inglorious treaty with Tripoli—I can account for his conduct in both these cases. Fear the negotiator of that treaty, betrayed his old master Washington. Jefferson profited of his treachery and rewarded his minion by a lucrative appointment—And though dissatisfied with the conditions of peace he durst not bring the negotiator to any enquiry lest he himself should in turn be betrayed: for he has philosophy to discern that the man who sells himself once may always be bought. The report of the transactions and issue of the war were correctly brought home. The people of the United States were universally dissatisfied with the premature treaty—Mr. Jefferson seemed to have the same sensibility for the honor of the American flag. A committee of the Senate was appointed to enquire, investigate and report on facts—did report—and in terms which do them honor, condemned the negotiation in toto. Mr. Jefferson feared to call the man to his responsibility, whom he had once corrupted. Fear must consequently be kept in the back ground. The honorable John Quincy Adams appeared on the floor of the senate chamber as the champion of this patriot of cowardice, duplicity and treachery—cast a stigma on the few starved Americans who had fought the decisive battles of the war—passed eulogiums on Lear who had made you tributary to a conquered barbarian—and denounced, in philippics, the only man who had received a wound in the expedition of 1805. All this patriotism and honesty from the honorable John Quincy Adams because he had received the promise of an appointment as minister plenipotentiary to Constantinople; but it was finally decided that no ambassador, at that time, near the Grand Seigneur, was necessary. Adams, the younger (for I would always make discrimination between him and the venerable Revolutionary Patriot) converted by ambition and hope from a thorough-going federalist to a courtly democrat, stood on in expectation of a commission somewhere; approves embargo; denounces as vassals better men than ever came from his father’s loins; and receives a nomination as minister plenipotentiary to St. Petersburg.—The event has been the same, though more formal, as the mention of him to the Sublime Porte. If John Q. Adams, therefore, be legitimate—i. e. not out of the family, I would discard the race—they have no influence here.

Much has been said and printed against Mr. Pickering; and much argument drawn reproachful to his name, from the circumstance of his being dismissed from the department of state. I know that senator well—He is just. And Aristides will be Aristides still. The cause of his dismissal was not political. As no cause has ever been offered the nation, we have a right to conjecture. It is more than conjecturable that his opposition to the appointment of Col. Smith, son-in-law to the then President, to the high rank and important trust of brigadier general and adjutant and inspector general of the provisional army of eighty thousand, provoked that hasty act of Mr. Adams. Col. Pickering had served with Mr. Smith. Though Mr. Pickering has too much independence of soul to give this explanation, it cannot be controverted. If these facts be true—and I believe them such—we cannot but infer from them, that, admitting the letter from the National Egis to be a true copy of its original, we ought to let it be on the table.

It is matter of much regret, that we, as men, and not on measures. But, unhappily, this I fear has become almost a necessary situation—and I must take my part in it—Gore; sincerely believing him the most independent and best qualified republican of the two candidates held out here for suffrages. I shall give my vote generally for the federal republican ticket: for I have less of political concealment—less of political hypocrisy—less of political swindling—and more of broad day political truth and honesty, than we should by supporting the ticket which is intended to support Mr. Lincoln.

Left at Liverpool March 6, the following vessels bound to America—ship Ann, Bradford, Norfolk, destination unknown; ship Ann, Nutcombe of Boston; barque Mary, Bradford, of Boston for Philadelphia; brig Ann Caldwell of New York; and schooner Mary, Davis, of Gloucester for Philadelphia. April 15, lat. 39 37, long. 63 30, spoke the ship New York Packet, Simpson, 5 days from New York, for St. Michaels. 17th spoke a brig, 3 days from Boston, for St. Jago de Cuba, April 14, lat. 43 25, long. 51 W. fell in with 2 or 300 mountains of ice, and some of them very large.

Latest from Europe.

Last evening arrived at this port the brig Cumberland, capt. Meserve, in 44 days from Liverpool, which place the vessel left on the 6th of March, and capt. M. has positively favoured the Editor of the Mercantile Advertiser with a file of the London Courier to the evening of the 3d of March, from which we have copied the following articles of intelligence.

Our London papers are nearly filled with the examination of witnesses against the Duke of York.

LONDON, March 1.

A question was asked by Mr. Ponsonby, in the House of Commons yesterday, whether the treaty which had been said to be on the eve of being concluded with Spain, had been as yet ratified? And 2d. whether the report to which he had alluded on a former night, viz. that the force sent from Lisbon had been refused admission into Cadiz was true or not.

Mr. Canning replied to the first question that the ratification of the treaty had not been received; and to the second that he could not give any precise answer, though he did not know of any such circumstance having taken place.

The gallant sir David Baird is immediately to be elevated to the peerage with the title of Viscount.

Sir John Moores family are to have pensions.

Gen. Hope is to be made a Baronet, and get the first Red Ribbon.

CORK, February 26.

The expedition to sail from this port will we understand be under the command of major general Beresford. It will consist of 6 regiments, their destination is not mentioned. The transports have not yet arrived for their embarkation.

The troops under major general Sherbrooke, still remain at Cove, waiting for instructions to proceed on their destination.

MARCH 3.

Peace between Great Britain and Turkey. Probability of a war between Austria and France.

Dutch papers arrived this morning to the 28th ult. They contain very important intelligence—War between Austria and France is openly spoken of, and an article in the Leyden paper, of the 27th, informs us of the measures which have been adopted by the cabinet of Vienna; measures which can only have been adopted in the contemplation of an immediate war.

Peace has certainly been concluded between Turkey and Great Britain. It was signed by the Turkish minister, Haki Effendi, and Mr. Adair. A fresh insurrection had broken out at Constantinople, and the peace with England is said, in an article from Vienna, to have been the immediate consequence of it. The Russian generals, as soon as they were informed of the event, broke off all negotiation with the Turks.

An article from Arragon, dated the 11th February, mentions that there are 40,000 men in arms defending Saragossa; that Ju men is besieging it; that the works and tranches are pushed on to the gates of the town, and a bombardment kept up without intermission. The enemy hope to force the place to surrender by famine more than by force of arms.

LINTZ, Feb. 8, (by way of France.) The anxiety which the reports of a new war in Austria had occasioned, has been augmented by the late measures of the court of Vienna. It is certain that some light corps are to be formed, which will be sent to join different regiments. Other military preparations are likewise making, and magazines are forming in Bohemia and Austria. M. Fashender, who in the late campaigns was principal commissary to the Austrian army, has been again appointed to that post, and the count de Guine, for merly adjutant general to the Archduke Charles, has been appointed adjutant to the emperor. The Archduke Ferdinand is to take the chief command of an Austrian army in Bohemia, if war should break out, and count Bellegarde will command an army in Carinthia and Carniola. In the mean time several generals who commanded on the Turkish frontiers have been recalled to Vi enna. Many persons however doubt, whe ther the Archduke Charles approves the measures of the court, and will be willing to enter into a new war. In the conferences which have been held on the subject, and at which both that Prince and the Archduke Ferdinand, the brother of the Empress, were present, it is said, a new general levy was spoken of, and different measures pro posed to render it agreeable to the people.
Those most experienced in military affairs estimate the whole of our regular troops at 140,000 men; but it is not practicable to find a train of artillery sufficient for an army of 60,000 men.

Leyden Courant, Feb. 27.
VIENNA, February 11.
A courier sent off by our internuncio at Constantinople, M. Sturmer, has brought intelligence to the government of a new in surrection of the Janissaries which has been very bloody, and by which the Porte was ob liged to conclude a peace with England.
The Courier left Constantinople on the 16th January. The first consequence of this e vent has been that the Russian generals have broken off all communication with the Turks.

The Gazette contains the following arti cle under the head of Turkey: On the 5th of January, peace was con cluded between England and the Sublime Porte, by the British minister Mr. Adair & Hakki Effendi, in consequence of which all the ports in the Turkish empire are open to the English ships. This important intelli gence was immediately transmitted to the principal commercial towns in Europe, Asia and Africa, and a great change may be ex pected in the great towns of the Levant, and the prices of most commodities.—London Courant, Feb. 28.

The Brest fleet have put into Rochefort.
The object of the Brest fleet was, in the first instance, to surprise our squadron off Rochefort, consisting of four sail of the line, then to join the Rochefort, and proceed from thence to Ferrol, where, united to the Ferrol squadron, their combined force would have amounted to 20 sail of the line. It has been reported that on their return passage to Rochefort, the Brest fleet called off L'O rient, and were joined by the squadron there —but this, we understand, is not the fact; they made their way direct to Rochefort.
The enemy had no sooner got into Basque roads than admiral Stopford was joined by three sail of the line, which had been block ading L'Orient. The admiral has now under him the Caesar, Donegal, Defiance, Triumph, Valiant, Revenge and Theseus.
He would soon be joined by the division un der admiral Duckworth, which had been dispatched by lord Gambier to cruise off cape Finisterre, his lordship very naturally supposing that the enemy would push for Ferrol. The Caledonia, his lordship's ship, supplied admiral Duckworth with all her provisions, which obliged her to return to Plymouth to procure a fresh supply. The frigates belonging to the Brest fleet were a good way behind the line of battle ships, and hence we were enabled to drive them under the batteries of the Sables d'Olonne.
The Caesar was left keeping up a tremen dous fire upon them, and it was hoped would be able to effect their destruction.
The Brest fleet was in Basque roads, & ex pectations, as we stated yesterday, are enter tained that their capture or destruction may be effected.

part of which were lost by the ice, and part

The Stockholm Gazette of February 16, states, that intelligence had been received from Schwerin, that Gen. Davoust had given notice to the French Consul in Ros tock, that the embargo laid on 51 merchant men lying in that port, is raised.

GOTTENBURG, Feb. 21.
The following is an account of the last five British ships of war, three Swedish ships of war, and twelve merchant vessels,

Accounts have lately reached us of the Claudio cutter being lost on the Norway coast, with 14 of her guns; and of the loss of the Proselyte sloop of war, in the Acholt, besides the loss in this quarter of the Pur ser and Constant gun brig.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 16.
According to a report made by Field Marshall Baron Toll, the following letter has been received by the commandant of Landsrona, from the commander of the English gun brig Charger.

As under the present circumstances an attack of this fortress may perhaps be at tempted, I beg to tender my own services, as well as those of my officers and men, and request that a post may be assigned to us where we can render ourselves useful for the defence of the place.

JOHN BLOW.
His royal majesty has received the fol lowing reports:
In consequence of several reports hav ing been received, stating that Russian Cos sacs had made their appearance in Kum linge, and other neighboring places, I have ordered a new expedition against Kumlinge under the command of lieut. col. Schutzen heim, consisting of 600 foot of the first and third brigade, and 80 horse of the Life Guards, with two 8 pounders. The corps moves this day to Wardoe, in order to reach Kumlinge to-morrow in three columns, early in the morning. The object of this expedition was to dislodge the enemy from the above places, to save the most valuable part of the moveable property of the inha bitants, and destroy the rest.

L. P. PEYRON.
Adjutant general, and commander in chief of his majesty's troops in Finland.
Head Quarters, Jamela, Jan. 26, 1809.

The expedition in my last report, be came more necessary, as before the troops put themselves in motion, intelligence was received of the Cossacks appearing in great force, and one of our out posts having been driven in.

The troops ordered on that expedition reached Kumlinge on the 29th of last month and after they had succeeded in driving the enemy out of the place and its environs, the most valuable part of the enemy's property and the inhabitants was saved. The object of the expedition having thus been obtain ed, the troops returned to their quarters in Aland.

LONDON, March 4.
Extract of a letter from captain Boyes, of the ship Harmony, dated CARLSRONA, January 29.
There are about 60 sail in this port, bound to England. The last convoy sailed from hence on the twenty-second, with the Salcette frigate, but only nine vessels got out of the ice. I sailed on the fifth, un der convoy of the Orion man of war, and three brig cutters, with about seventy sail. The fleet was dispersed in all direc tions. The Orion brought up under Born holm, with 14 sail only. Nearly half of the fleet were missing. I saw the Danes, cap ture two of them. We have of 20 being captured, and four lost. On the 14th ar rived here in company with about 14 sail; on the 16th, 17th, and 18th, about 20 more returned.

BALTIMORE, April 22.
Arrived, ship Messenger, Quimby, 11 days from Havana. The Messenger left this since the raising of the embargo. No news. There was a combination among the purchasers of flour not to buy for a certain time, with a forfeiture of 1000 dollars on those that broke it.

Extract of a letter from the Havana (by the Messenger) dated HAVANNA, April 10.
A week ago, the brig Blanche, from Baltimore, arrived here. The result of her voyage is yet doubtful. The ultimate in tention of this government is unknown; but a duty of about eleven dollars a barrel on flour will be imposed, and 50 per cent. on all other American articles which can or have been supplied from Vera Cruz or Cam peachy. They will grant a drawback, how ever, on all such articles, including flour, which may be re-shipped, in any bottoms within sixty days—after sixty days, the drawback will still be allowed when re shipped in Spanish vessels.

We know not what to ask for flour; will not take less than 20 dollars. Produce has not risen much—white sugars 4 50 to 5 dollars; brown 2 50 to 3. Duty on wine and all dry goods, except cotton, 22 per cent. (formerly 34 to 38.)

There are about 9 or 10,000 bbls. Flour in the market.

A letter from Havana of the 5th instant, states that 50 sail of American vessels from the United States had arrived there within that week, among which was the brig Blanche, Richardson, from Baltimore. A duty of ten dollars per bbl. on flour had been laid by the government to enable the holders of it that had bought at advanced prices to dispose on equal terms. Owing to the Holy days no business had been done; no sale of flour had been effected; the price remained unfixed. Sugars (brown) had risen from one and a half to four dollars.

The following which is from the Phila delphia Gazette, gives a different reason for laying high duties.

A letter from Havanna says: "In con sequence of Spanish vessels not being per mitted to bring cargoes from the U. States, it is in contemplation to double the duties on all American imports.

A letter from Liverpool, per the brig Cum trade. From the highly respectable channel through which this news reaches us, we are

By the Spanish schooner Havana, arrived yesterday, in 17 days from Havanna, we un had sailed since the 16th of the last month, had arrived; among them the Caroline, Da great fall in American, and rise in the Island

The insurrection excited much uneasiness—its real object or extent was difficult to be as

The following MEDICINES are sold by ROBERT GRAY, Bookseller, in King-street—and by N. HINGSTON, Fairfax-street, Alexandria—

LEE'S ELIXIR!!

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, catarrhs, asthmas, sore throats, and approaching consumptions. A single trial of this medicine will prove its efficacious quality in restoring a perspiration common to healthy people; it dislodges and expels the tough viscid phlegm or mucus, strengthening the weakened vessels of the lungs, thus striking at the root of the disorder, the symptoms of course are effectually and permanently conquered. The great number of cures performed in 1808 by this elegant and useful preparation, is sufficient to astonish and convince those that labor under colds, coughs, consumptions, &c. of being immediately relieved, without saying any thing of the many thousands benefited in former years; however for the information of those persons, if any there be, that have not heard of the balsamic qualities of Lee's Elixir, we give the names of the following persons, who are well known to our citizens in general as persons of integrity and strict veracity. From the following certificates it will plainly appear, that a three year's consumption, a common cold or cough, are all with ease removed by Lee's Elixir.

Messrs. R. Lee and Son,

The superior qualities of your medicine, called Lee's Elixir, induces me to give you this certificate for publication, to point to my suffering fellow mortals the road to health, the most valuable of all earthly possessions. For upwards of three years I have been afflicted with a severe cough, tightness of the breast, lowness of spirits, and a gradual wasting of the flesh; having tried different medicines recommended for such cases, without receiving any real benefit; fortunately one of your advertisements was given to me—I immediately applied to Mr. Vance, 178, Market street, for some of your Elixir, which has contrary to the expectations of my friends restored me to my former good state of health. Any other information will be given by me.

George Harwood,
Market street, Baltimore.

Messrs. R. Lee & Son,

You are at liberty to publish for the good of others, the benefit I have received from your excellent preparation called Lee's Elixir. Being afflicted with violent pains in the breast, loss of appetite, and a debility of the whole system, which rendered me unable to attend to business, being advised to try your Elixir, I procured two bottles of Messieurs Warner and Hanna, which has entirely removed the complaint, and restored me to a perfect state of health. From the good effect of your Elixir I was led to suppose your other medicines were equally efficacious, which induced me to give your Worm Lozenges to my children, and with pleasure I inform you they had the desired effect. Any other information I shall give on application to me at my house in Sly's street, Baltimore.

John Keeler

Messrs. R. Lee & Son,

In the month of June I was attacked with a most violent cold, a severe cough and pains in the breast, which continued to grow worse, so that much time my appetite failed, and I was so altered so much, that it was with the utmost exertion I could pronounce a single sentence louder than my breath. Some of my friends having observed to me, that much good had been done by the use of Lee's Elixir, advised me to procure a bottle from Messrs Warner and Hanna, which I accordingly did—and to those persons unacquainted with the merits of this medicine, it will appear astonishing that three doses should remove the pains in my breast, and the use of the one bottle restored me to PERFECT HEALTH.

J. A. Smith,

Lee's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

This medicine is superior to any ever offered to the public, being innocent and mild, certain and efficacious in its operations. WHEREAS his Royal Highness the Prince Regent of Portugal, has been pleased to declare, that all AMERICAN VESSELS in his port shall be considered as those of the most favored nations:—the undersigned hereby gives notice, that he has been authorized by Joseph Rademaker, Esq. Consul-General and Charge d'Affaires, from his Royal Highness to the United States, to legalize all papers necessary for vessels bound to Portuguese ports, from the district of Columbia.

It is necessary that all masters of vessels should have their bills of health legalized, otherwise they will be subject to quarantine; and, to avoid unpleasant discussion of reclamations, it is also requisite that any articles shipped for account of Portuguese subjects should be declared and sworn to in the bills of lading as being Portuguese property, and those bills also legalized by the consular agents.
